• Nobel Laureate comes to SSU

SSU Lectures Series hosts "Beloved" Toni Morrison

inaugurates its new Presidential Lecture Series with a reading by Nobel laureate Toni Morrison on Sunday, Apr. 25, at 2 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Morrison's stature as one of the great American writers of the 20th century makes her a perfect choice to launch a lecture series devoted to bringing world leaders in the arts, humanities and sciences to the Eastern Shore, said SSU President William C. Merwin.

Morrison, 68, has had a

New science building set to be built

Teresa Piekarski Flyer Staff Writer

Leaping into the future, SSU has hopes of constructing a new science building with greater technology and more space than Devilbiss Science Hall has ever had.

During the 30 years Devilbiss has been the science facility for SSU, it has gradually grown outdated and no longer fits the needs of the department. Because of the rapid growth in the size of the sciences, the University literally outgrew the building. Science departments are now housed not only in Devilbiss, but Potomac Hall and the Power Professional Building as well.

However, "given the integrated, interdisciplinary nature of the 21st century science and technology, it is imperative for all faculty and students to have opportunities to share their work and research across majors and scientific disciplines," said President William C. Merwin.

In addition to not being large enough to hold all the sciences, Devilbiss is not equipped to offer students the opportunity to study in a first-rate, state-of-the-art facility. In order to address these important issues, something had to be done; either build a new facility or totally renovate the present facility.

"In this day and age, the cost of renovating buildings like Devilbiss is more expensive than building new ones and so it was wisely decided that we had better construct a new building,' explained Dr. Thomas W. Jones, Dean of the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology.

In deciding that SSU needed a new science facility, the upper administration contacted the University

Salisbury State's Men's Lacrosse team, ranked number two in the nation, lost Saturday afternoon's contest to Gettysburg College, 10-8, dropping its record to 9-1 overall. SSU had previously owned the head- to- head record between these two Division III lacrosse powerhouses with a record of 9-1.

Gettysburg jumped to an early lead, leaving the first quarter leading 4-1. Immediatly after starting the second quarter, SSU bounced back with three goals, two by senior Peter Troup and one from junior Chris Turner. After the trio of Salisbury goals, both defenses turned up the pressure by playing man-to-man defense. But the Bullets wore down the Gulls' defense and scored three unanswered goals, ending the half with a comfortable 7-4 lead.

After half time, Turner scored offense score for the next ten minutes, his second goal of the afternoon just 40 seconds after the face-off. After the goal spending worth it for these hopeful teams? Maybe in the long run it will be, but I really don't see any t e a m challenging the defending champion New York Yankees. I think that the one and only possible threat to New York is premature to pick a winner, but I really don't see any surprises this season. Anyone who hates the Yankees and Braves should probably just. watch Big Mac's chase for 71 this season, as those two teams will probably end up in the Fall Classic. I predict New York over Atlanta in six.

came out blazing, not missing a shot, in the first 10 minutes of the game. North Carolina also fouled Chamberlain continually, attempting to slow down a half. This attack overflowed when The Rebels were the defending National Chamberlain and Pete Brennan squared Champs and breezed through the regular off, but was settled with some help from season undefeated and unchallenged. the Kansas City Police.

Duke, sported eight High School All-Americans and had suffered one loss the whole season to Cincinnati on a last second tip in. The Blue Devils entered the finals with a 16-0 ACC record and a 32-game winning streak. The Dukies faced off against the UConn Huskies, the only other team all year to hold the number one national ranking. The Huskies' outside shooting and defense stunned the Blue Devils and Player of the Year Elton Brand was held ineffective throughout. In the final seconds, senior Trajan Langdon tripped while trying to get off a tying three pointer, giving the Huskies the win.

4-1974 UCLA Bruins-

The Bruins found themselves at the end of their college dominance. Earlier in the reagular season, the Bruins' 88- game winning streak was snapped by the Notre Dame Fighting Irish. The Bruins met up with the North Carolina State WolfPack in the National Semi-final game. In the second half, the Bruins had a four minute span in which they did not score a point, enabling the Wolfpack to get back into the game. N.C. State came back and tied the game sending it into overtime. In the extra period, N.C. State, led by David Thompson, who had suffered a concussion and had received fifteen stitches in the prior game, scored 11 unanswered points ending UCLA's era

3-1966 Kentucky Wildcats-

Kentucky was the regular season favorite to win it all and was led by legendary coach Adolph Rupp. It was not Kentucky's overwhelming status that made the game so significant, but rather the result the game had on the face of college basketball. Kentucky squared off against Texas Western in the National Championship Game. Texas was just a small school that no one would have believed could make it this far. The team was also the first to ever field an all black starting line -up. The Kentucky team fielded no African

1-1983 Houston Cougars-

A power-filled lineup that included Akeem (before he became Hakeem) Olajuwon and Clyde "The Glide" Drexler revolutionized the fast upbeat style of dunking and playing above the rim. The philosophy of the so- called come off two last second wins, including Phi Slamma Jamma, all season was the an amazing win over Kentucky that most slams wins. They faced off in the final game against the N.C. State game ever. The Bine Devils were also Wolfpack. Americans and, in fact, none were ever previous year to the Rebels in the win games against Pepperdine and squared off with the Rebels' Big Three transition game and halted the two doing little to the cause. Duke took teams' stars to a combined four points. the Wolfpack's Dereck Whittenburg throws up a desperation three pointer that came up short, but Lorenzo Charles was there to grab the ball and slam it before time expired. This sent the Cougars' bench into a fury as the late Jim Valvano went running around the floor looking for someone to embrace in one of college basketballs most memorable moments. This game proved that a slow tempo, well- executed game is better than a fast paced one played
